Where we help

You may have a critical project which requires careful attention in setting it up so that it can deliver, or where you have a project manager stepping up to greater complexity and needing extra support.

You may need project processes that are sufficient but not too heavy or rigid. Where the approach actually helps stakeholders and teams to engage and collaborate, rather than to resist.

You can keep your shirt

Consultancies can persuade their clients that big problems need big interventions. We don't think like that, preferring to keep our service light and flexible; just enough to help you shape the project or process and to give you clarity on the most important issues to tackle. After that, it's best that you lead the changes yourself if you can. In any event, whatever we do in support of your projects and processes, we will decide together with you. And we have never delivered a big PowerPoint consultancy presentation - We don't believe you should pay us to create slides.
